After the expansion to Germany, Wazap! is taking the next step today: Recently, a beta version of the American edition was released. The differences to the German website are visible at first sight.

During the last weeks, they were working on a new design and improved user handling using feedback from boards and comments. Another feature is the global login: European users can take full advantage of the revised portal. In a few weeks, you will also be able to use the new design and the features on the German Wazap! page.
